

New event for The Online Coldfusion Meetup Group: Rob Gonda on AJAX

Posted At : September 6, 2006 4:20 AM | Posted By : Steven Erat

Related Categories: Breeze, Learning, Meetup, ColdFusion, Computer Technology, New England

Welcome Back ColdFusion Enthusiasts!

The summer is winding down, and most everyone has returned from vacations, so the Online ColdFusion Meetup Group is getting fired back up. To kick off the first online event this fall, Rob Gonda will present on AJAX, in the context of ColdFusion applications.

If you have ideas for topics or speakers you'd like to see, please contact me to let me know. Nate Nelson is preparing a couple talks on Advanced SQL, so look for those in the near future, too.

Thanks!
Steven Erat
Organizer, OCFMG

---

Announcing a new event for The Online Coldfusion Meetup Group!

What: Rob Gonda on AJAX

When: Wednesday, September 13, 7:00 PM US/Eastern Time (timezone conversions).
Please RSVP

Where: Online. This is an online Breeze Meeting. Find the Breeze URL on the event detail page under MORE INFORMATION.

Note: The Boston CFUG will meet to watch the presentation collectively. See Boston CFUG for more information.

Event Description: Rob Gonda to discuss AJAX - Ajax, Web 2.0, RIAs, single-page-applications are just a few buzzwords that every developer needs to know in 2006. Learn the history of Ajax, what it means to you, why you should pay attention, who is using it, what is available, and how to implement it. This session will get you up to speed with Ajax, compare the different existing frameworks, and provide you helpful tips of do's and do not's with Ajax.

Rob Gonda is the CTO for iChameleon Group and Editor-in-Chief of AJAX Developer's Journal. He is an Advanced Certified Coldfusion Developer, frequent contributor to the CFDJ, holds a BS in computer science and engineering, and has an MBA with a specialization in entrepreneurship from the Wayne Huizenga School of Business. You can reach him at rob[at]robgonda[dot]com and Rob's blog is at <http://www.robgonda.com/>